

FPC Intergenerational Spring Day Retreat
Theme: Let Love Lead

Join us for our intergenerational spring retreat on Saturday, March 9 from 10 am-3 pm at Hard Labor Creek. Lunch and snacks are included.

What to expect:

Our church retreat includes worship, fellowship, keynotes lead by Rev. Emily Wilmesherr, small groups, free time, and more! Free time options include putt-putt, hiking, boating, board games and golf. The retreat is intergenerational so there will be activities and games for children.

Like to golf??

If you are interested in golfing for half of the day and attending a portion of the retreat, that is also an option! Let Erin know by Feb. 21 (erin@fpccov.org).

Cost:

Adults: $20

Kids: $5

Family max: $40

Scholarships are available, see Erin for information (erin@fpccov.org).

Register by March 1st by clicking HERE at the link below!

Payment can be made online on Realm by clicking HERE and selecting "Retreat Fee" from the dropdown menu or by cash/check with "Retreat Fee" in the memo space.

More about our speaker:

The Reverend Emily Wilmesherr was born and raised in Murfreesboro, Tennessee. She studied Middle School Math Education at Middle Tennessee State University where she met her husband, Drew, through the Presbyterian campus ministry. She worked throughout college as the ministry intern and as the children's church coordinator at her home church. Emily and Drew moved to Decatur in the fall of 2013 for Drew to begin his theological education at Columbia Theological Seminary, and Emily started classes in summer of 2014. She worked as a ministry intern at Saint Luke's Presbyterian in Dunwoody, Ga throughout seminary. She graduated with her Masters of Divinity in 2017. She began working at Decatur Presbyterian Church in Decatur, Ga in August of 2017 where she continues to serve as the Associate Pastor of Intergenerational and Caring Ministries. She loves to find opportunities to connect all ages together in faith formation, service, and worship. Emily and Drew have two daughters, Evie and Juliette.